INFORMATION LITERACY ACTIVITY:

Select a career that interests you or that you might want to pursue in the future.

Find reliable information: Use at least three sources (official career websites, industry blogs, job portals, etc.) to research the job requirements, skills, salary, and growth opportunities for that career.

Cross-check for accuracy: Compare the information from each source. Do they all provide the same details? Are there any differences in the job descriptions or salary ranges?

Identify source credibility: Evaluate the reliability of each source. Is the information coming from an official industry page or a blog? What makes one source more trustworthy than another?

Create a career profile: Summarise your findings into a career profile, highlighting key information like required education, average salary, job outlook, and your personal insights. Explain how you verified that the information you gathered was accurate and trustworthy.

The infographic is titled "CAREER MYTH VS FACT" in a teal banner at the top. It features a central illustration of a woman in a grey suit sitting at a desk with a laptop, looking up with a speech bubble containing a checkmark. To the left, under a red "X" icon, is a teal box labeled "MYTH" containing the text: "Only the perfect job will make me happy." To the right, under a green checkmark icon, is a teal box labeled "FACT" containing the text: "Every job requires hard work and dedication. There is nothing easy, even in a perfect job. So whatever job you have, buckle down and give it your all. There's happiness and pride in doing a job well." The background is light grey with a window and a potted plant. At the bottom right, there are logos for "abq" and "DYP Discovering You Program".
