Construction

Adria uses tried and tested materials and proven methods in motorhome body construction, such as GFK, a lightweight, high-strength composite material combining plastic with glass fibres, which we further reinforce. Walls are strengthened by composite slats, the roof and floor core by XPS Extruded Polystyrene, a rigid closed cell foam insulation material with high moisture-resistance, compressive strength and consistent thermal performance. Panel is used around the windows, and a polyester layer is added to the floor construction. The result is a strong, durable body you can rely on.
